GRAYLING SCHOOLS

SCHOOL OPENED TUES. GOOD ENROLLMENT

School opened Tuesday, September 4th with a slight increase in the regular attendance. There being more students this year than there were enrolled at this time last year. Only two of the former high school teachers have returned, Mr. Cushman, principal and Miss Lindstrom, domestic science and art, but the new force is nicely filling the vacancies. Mr. Bogue, the new superintendent has begun things with a firm hand that assures a prosperous year for Grayling High School. All departments are in fine shape and already classes are following the regular routine.

A fine thing has been done in the high school this year. All students in the assembly room, including the seventh to the twelfth grades, have had a complete going over of their credits in order that there may be no mistakes in credits or a deficiency of any kind. Each student now has a good idea of what he has and what he has to have in order to complete his course and enable him to enter college. Mr. Bogue and Mr. Cushman spent all of Wednesday checking these records.

Already football practice has started so we may look for a good school year in both academic and non-academic fields.

OTSEGO COUNTY FAIR NEXT WEEK

The Otsego County Fair opens at Gaylord next week Tuesday, Sept. 11th, and closes Friday night, Sept. 14th.

The Midway is the best ever this year and five big shows will afford fun and amusement to the pleasure-loving public.

The agricultural exhibits are considered better than they have been for a number of years. A passenger airplane will make trips to the clouds and give two rides for $5. A merry-go-round, chair plane and a Ferris wheel will entertain the children and grownups. Music, mirth and novelty will give all a surfeit of pleasure. Plan right now to go to Gaylord next week and get your share of the feast of good things provided for the public.

Mr. Allen was born in Allegan County, Michigan, and came to Grayling from Alba 8 years ago to reside.

The remains were taken to his former home at Alba, where services will be held and burial will take place today.

Surviving the deceased are his wife and small son, also a step-son Sam Smith, of this city.

GOODFELLOWSHIP CLUB HELPS INFIRMARY

Through the efforts of Mrs. Robert Gillett, Chairman of the Goodfellowship Club Charity Committee, they have installed nine good rockers, a Morris chair and leather couch, for the comfort of the inmates of the infirmiry, donated with two exceptions by the members of the club.

The club has also donated a beautiful new lawn swing with canopy top, and a canvas fly under which the swing is placed in the yard. This swing will be placed in the hall of the infirmiry during the winter.

The club has also donated, through the generosity of some kind citizens, a good suit and overcoat to each of the men; also dresses etc. for the women.

This is certainly a good beginning and it seems it is not the end of the good work, but in addition to their regular charity work, the club will continue to keep an eye on the infirmiry and hope in the future to be able to aid in giving the inmates pleasure as well as comfort.

Our Poor Commission, Emil Kraus says, will provide curtains for each of the windows, which will give it a homelike appearance.

The Goodfellowship Club deserves much credit for the interest taken in this worthy institution. Mrs. Gillett, in behalf of the club wishes to thank those who have helped to make this fine work possible.

Frequent showers slowed up some of the events as it was necessary several times for the shooters to get under shelter. The club house filled the need and proved to be very comfortable. Mrs. Bobenmoyer served good things to eat and hit a happy chord with the hungry men. The visitors were very much pleased with the new shooting range and offered many fine compliments on the efforts of the local gun club.

BIG PIANO SALE STARTS SATURDAY

PIANO CO. LAUNCHES CAMPAIGN AT SORENSON BROS. FURNITURE STORE

The Waltham Piano company of Milwaukee, established since 1885, has inaugurated a big factory to home piano sale whereby for a limited time customers may obtain the benefit of factory prices. Mr. Carl L. Netzow, Vice Pres. of the company who is spending his vacation in Grayling, will personally superintend this sale, starting Saturday morning at 9 o'clock.

The Waltham Piano company is well known in the piano industry for reason of its welfare work and has received much favorable comment on same throughout the country.

The company, under the plan of its president, Paul Netzow, has adopted a policy in which officers of the company and employees are made co-workers in a common enterprise.

The company carries for its men a life insurance policy, it gives a straight bonus of 10 per cent, a 5 and 10 per cent bonus on production, it has formed a profitable sharing and thrift society and a suggestion premium system.

Under the profit sharing plan, employees share in the profits of the company after the firm members have received fair returns on their suggestions which prove practical in the operation of the plant, they are granted royalties amounting to 50 per cent of their money value to the plant.

Recently an employee in the shipping department discovered that by making slight alterations in the building a saving of two hours a day could be accomplished. This employee, under the suggested premium plan, was granted pay for one hour's time for a year.

The welfare policy of the company includes a $50 wedding present to each employee who marries after he has been with the company a year. Employees receiving yearly salaries of $2,400 or less, who have been with the company a year or more receive a gift of $50.00 from the company when each child is born.

Mr. Netzow believes that married men with families make the most dependable workmen. To help such men meet the increased cost of living he has evolved the following plan: Men who earn $100 a month or less are given a bonus of $5 a month for each dependent child; less than $115 a month, $5 for each dependent child over 3; less than $125 a month, $5 for each dependent child over 5; less than $135 a month, $5 for each dependent child over 7, and less than $150 a month, $5 for each dependent child over 10.

The company also has a pension fund which enables employees to retire on pension at the age of 60, or in case of total disability, before. Eighty per cent of the employees have been with the company 15 or more years.

All employees of the company have a voice in the welfare department's handling of affairs and monthly meetings are held to discuss various phases of the work.

FIRE PROTECTION DIFFICULT AT ISLE ROYALE

Lansing, Sept. 3.—Because of its location, forest fire hazards on Isle Royale, Michigan's great island wonderland in Lake Superior, are less than at any place in either the lower or upper peninsula, in the opinion of Conservation Department forest fire chiefs. Inasmuch as there are but few roads and trails on the island, there is practically no traffic, thus virtually eliminating the possibility of man starting a blaze. This summer for the first time in a decade a fire occurred on the island and although it burned for three days before it was brought under control, only six acres of land were burned over. This conflagration was caused by lightning.

Two men are stationed on the island to guard against fire. They are properly equipped and have the authority to deal with any emergency that may arise. This means that Isle Royale has as much protection as any similar area in the State, at least at the present time.

The Department is going to investigate the feasibility of erecting a fire tower on the island. If it is placed inland, a job of cutting a trail through will be the first problem confronting the workmen. The forest growth is so dense that it is practically impossible for a man to pick his way through. Although the island is only six or seven miles in width, it is next to impossible to traverse it.

When the fire broke out this summer, Conservation Department men had to take a boat around the island in order to reach the blaze. They could not cross the six mile stretch of wilderness. The situation is a difficult one to handle from the angle of fire protection.

MANY VISITORS CLIMB FIRE TOWERS

Lansing, Sept. 3.—Climbing forest fire observation towers has been added to the list of summer sports in Michigan. A review of the registers maintained at the various towers reveals the fact that large numbers of persons are visiting them. Men and even women are not daunted by the tall outside ladders that stretch up to the shelter house on the top of the tower. They climb bravely to the crow's nest for the unrivalled views that may be had from these vantage points. Visitors from Florida in the south to Washington on the Pacific coast, left their names on the record books during the past summer.

Visitors ascend, to be amazed by the stretches of forest covered land that may be seen from the tower, but regular occupants of the steel crow's nest for the unrivalled views through the long summer days, eyes scanning the far flung horizons for the first sign of smoke that usually means the start of a blaze in the woods. Once discovered, the fire wardens go into action, hurrying to the location of the blaze with the speed that would match that of a city fire department wagon.

I wish to thank the voters for the fine support given me in the Primary election Tuesday. Wm. Ferguson.

MUSHROOM-FED BEEF

It is natural to associate mushrooms with a big, juicy beefsteak, but Elmer Osterander complains that this edible fungi is the means of attracting his dairy cows so that they forget to return home nights. The cattle are very fond of mushrooms which leads them to far corners of the woods in search of this favorite food. He found it necessary to send out a hurry-up order for cow bells so that he could more easily locate his cattle.

KEEPING TRACK OF RUNNING
EXPENSESBy Erwin Greer
(President Greer School of Electrical & Automotive Trades, Chicago Ill.)

Most motorists do not keep track of their running expenses because they imagine that it requires a lot of time and energy. But those who employ such a system in the management of their cars regard it as a long time investment. For instance, as I always make the entry in my car record book while watching the garage attendant fill up the gas tank, the matter of keeping account really requires no time at all for I would watch to see that I was getting full measure anyway. When the bill arrives from the garage there is never any time wasted in disputes on account of overcharges, because the garage man knows that my records are as accurate as his. As a matter of fact he has upon several occasions made mistakes, and has consulted my little red memorandum book in order to straighten out his own records. A number of motorists at the garage are always having arguments about their bills; and, as a consequence, waste more time while the garage man goes through his ledger than would be required to clean out the strainer in the vacuum tank.

Keeping track of running expenses is not necessarily a matter of finding out how much costs to motor but mainly a means of keeping a close check on the gasoline mileage which, in turn, is an excellent index of the condition of the motor and chassis. When my gasoline mileage suddenly fell below normal last month I discovered that the fan belt was slipping and that the motor was overheating.

There is economy in trying to make tires last as long as possible but when they are too old and you are motoring with the idea of "getting there" it pays to forego the use of the fag end of a tire's service.

A friend of mine recently ruined a whole day's trip by trying to economize on rubber. To cap the climax necessity forced him to purchase from a roadside garage the sort of tire he didn't want but had to have. It was like throwing money away, but it was the only alternative—considering that he insisted upon getting the last mile out of the old tire.

Realizing that time is the prime consideration in car care, manufacturers are constantly on the alert to improve design so that it is easier to keep track of running expenses. The motorist who wants to have his car give him the maximum amount of uninterrupted service must work out a system of his own for taking care of it. If by the addition of a certain system in his office it is possible to do more work in less time, surely something on the same order can be tried with the car with reasonable assurance of success.

JUMPS 7,000 FEET

It is reported from the Navy Recruiting Station at Detroit, Michigan, that Aviation Chief Mechanic's Mate William F. Scott made a parachute jump of 7,000 feet. Scott jumped from a plane piloted by Lieut. Litch and landed safely in a tree.

It took the plane forty-five minutes to ascend to the height from which the jump was made. The descent was made in six and one half minutes. Scott wore a new-type life preserver attachment in case he should land in the Potomac River.

GAYLORD, CHEBOYGAN AND

BUREAU ENTERTAIN PEN-

NSYLVANIA SPUD

GROWERS

(By E. M. T. Service)

Cheboygan and Gaylord and the North Eastern Michigan Development Bureau were hosts to 150 Pennsylvania potato growers on their tour of Northern Michigan while in this territory on August 23. The four day trip into Michigan's great seed potato area was under the direction of E. J. Leenhouts, general agricultural agent of the Michigan Central and New York Central lines.

When the potato growers arrived in North Eastern Michigan on August 23 in the morning breakfast was served them at Cheboygan by the Cheboygan chamber of commerce and they were welcomed by Mayor [A] H. Weber. The tourists then visited Mackinaw City and Mackinac Island, returning to Gaylord in time for dinner which was served by the Gaylord chamber of commerce. In the afternoon they were taken on a visit to Otsego County seed potato fields.

The North Eastern Michigan Development Bureau served lunch to the visiting potato growers in the evening.

The visit of the Pennsylvania growers and a few representatives from Ohio and Maryland resulted in a great deal of good for both the Northern Michigan farmers from whom the visitors purchase potato seeds and for the visitors themselves who not only visited the potato farms where they saw the manner in which the seeds they purchase are grown but came in intimate contact with the persons from whom they purchase their seeds.

GREEN-DICKINSON
SWEEP STATELIGHTEST PRIMARY ELECTION
VOTE OF MANY YEARS

The primary election didn't mean much to the people of Crawford county, judging it by the small vote cast Tuesday. This is easily accounted for by the lack of local contests. Only one county office was contested for, that of treasurer, on the Republican ticket. There was no county contest on the Democratic ticket and only one on the State ticket—for lieutenant governor.

Late returns sustain the overwhelming victory of Gov. Green over George S. Welsh for governor; also Lieut. Gov. Dickinson far out-ranked his nearest rival for lieutenant governor.

Tony Aghard is victor over H. S. Karcher for the office of State senator, in the district, and Wm. Green won out for representative in the state legislature, defeating Jas. B. Snody and Joseph Warnock.

BIG STATE FAIR OPENED SUNDAY

The most extensive entertainment program ever offered in the history of the Michigan State Fair, headed by Lieutenant-Commander John Philip Sousa and his band of 75 musicians and soloists, marked the Fair to be held September 2-8, according to Fair officials.

Sousa, veteran leader of the most famous military band in the world, who celebrates his Golden Jubilee as a conductor this season, officially opened the exhibition on Sunday afternoon, September 2, at 2:30 o'clock, with a sacred concert in the Coliseum, followed by a patriotic concert in the evening. During the event, the concert the Camp Fire Girls, Michigan National Guard and other organizations had an important part in the program. While there were no midway shows, races, vaudeville or fireworks open on Sunday, the exhibits were all ready for inspection.

Twenty-one acts of 'big-time' vaudeville which have scored successes on national circuits was one of the main features of the daily afternoon and evening program in front of the grand stand, which has been altered to provide ease of entrance and exit to the thousands of patrons. In the afternoons, from Monday to Friday inclusive, the program also included harness racing, featuring some of the best known horses and drivers in the United States. The spectacular fireworks display and panorama, "A Night in Bagdad" furnished the major thrill on the evening program. On a scenic background several hundred feet long in front of the grand stand, was shown the mysterious city of Bagdad in all its oriental splendor of glittering minarets, domes and temples, with mountains towering in the background. A specially trained ballet garbed in the colorful garments of the East, depicted a tale of Oriental love and intrigue, which culminated in a burst of fireworks and set pieces said to be the most magnificent presentation so far seen in Michigan.

Al Sweet and his band, well known Chicago organization, furnished the music incidental to the vaudeville and fireworks display in the evening. The entire program has been arranged to give a maximum of thrills to both adults and children, with practically three times the number of acts seen at regular runs in vaudeville houses.

During the week Sousa gave two concerts daily, in the afternoon in the grove and in the evening at the Coliseum, in conjunction with the nightly horse show where Detroit's society leaders put their imported blooded mounts through their paces.

On Saturday afternoon there will be an automobile race under the official auspices of the A. A. A., featuring noted drivers who have participated in major speed contests throughout the country.

So gigantic is this year's program that Fair officials estimate, that in order to do justice to the exhibits and entertainments, at least one day and two nights should be spent at the Fair. One night may be spent in the Coliseum, with Sousa's band and the horse show and another night at the grand stand to view the vaudeville acts, auto polo and fireworks spectacle. A day should be devoted to the vast collection of exhibits, featuring the State's prominence in agriculture, floriculture, commerce, husbandry and the arts.

Admission this year will be 25 cents, the same as last year, with children under 10, free. Ample auto parking space will be provided for the thousands attending the Fair.

SHOULD YOU BE PERMITTED TO DRIVE?

By Erwin Greer
(President Greer School of Electrical and Automotive Trades, Chicago, Ill.)
If you are not quite sure of your status as a safe driver, here is a simple way to check up on yourself. Granted you are physically okay, mentally alert and have a practical working knowledge of your car, here are things that you should know—and put into practice—before you ever take your car out of the garage. There are a number of other points that might be added, but these will do to start with.

Before driving a motor vehicle of any description you should:

Thoroughly understand the law of Right of Way.

And thoroughly understand street crossing automatic signals.

Thoroughly understand hand and arm signals.

Thoroughly understand laws relating to passing of vehicles on highways.

Thoroughly understand laws relating to the passing of standing street cars.

There is entirely too much of this "buy-a-car-and-learn-to-drive-it-the-same-day foolhardiness. One can learn to start, stop and reverse an automobile in a comparatively short time. Having learned this the tyro imagines he is master of the machine. And the demonstrator, anxious to get the pupil off his hands, acquiesces in the decision, excusing his negligence on the ground that the beginner will "pick up" the other things that he needs to know. Perhaps he will but in the "pick up" process he may have several nasty smash-ups and any number of narrow escapes.

Experience, however, forces the conviction that few persons will become really capable drivers if left solely to their own devices. They must be properly started and their actions supervised until they master the variety and nine things which distinguish the good driver—the safe, capable driver—from the man or woman who simply sits at the wheel and steers.

A Jolt to Heredity Theorists

The theories of E. H. Rieu, of Albert E. Wiggam and the other eugenists were given quite a jolt in the presidential and vice presidential nomination of the two major political parties.

Smith was born in the Lower East Side of New York, the son of a truck driver. Hoover's father was a blacksmith, without intellectual distinction of record. Curtis, born on an Indian reservation, is the son of humble parents.—Kansas City Star.

Brant Great Leader of American Indians

Capt. Joseph Brant, who has been called the greatest American Indian in all history, took to the warpath at the early age of thirteen years, and his first engagement was in the battle of Lake George against a French force in 1755. Recounting his experiences years later, he spoke mainly of this event, and the record of Reverend Doctor Stuart, a missionary who knew him well, quotes him as saying:

"This being the first action at which I was present, I was seized with such a tremor when the firing began that I was obliged to take hold of a small sapling to steady myself; but after the discharge of a few volleys I recovered the use of my limbs, and the composure of my mind, so as to support the character of a brave man, of which I was especially ambitious."

His warlike nature is illustrated by a second quotation of his:

"I like the harpichord well, the organ better, but the drum and the trumpet best of all, for they make my heart beat quick."

In 1775 Brant made a journey to the English court to plead for his tribe, which he thought was being badly treated by the British government. He was well received and not altogether unsuccessful in his mission. On this visit he received a ring, engraved with his name, which he said he was going to wear so that he could be identified if killed in battle. Up to the time of his death he wore it, and afterward it was kept by his family as an heirloom. Finally it was lost, and years later a little girl picked it up in a plowed field at Burlington, N. J.—Detroit News.

Books Not for Women

In the early period women were not admitted to the Athenaeum—except to its art gallery, which was Boston's first public collection of paintings. It did not occur to the proprietors that their wives and daughters should be allowed among the bookshelves. It was feared that the narrow galleries and steep staircases "would cause a decent female to shrink," and that "a considerable portion of a general library should be to her a closed book"; also that the presence of women "would occasion frequent embarrassment to modest men." The first woman to penetrate the portals was Hannah Adams, the historian, whose distinguished family connections among the trustees won her the victory in 1828.—John Chair Minot in the North American Review.

Dead Notes

When Geraldine Farrar was a little girl in Medford, Mass., and first began to show her musical talent, she drove the neighbors frantic with her budding vocal efforts.

"Do you really have to do that?" a little boy in the neighborhood asked her one day.

"Of course I do," declared Jerry. "Beautiful music always seems to haunt me!"

"That's because you murder it first!" decided the wag and the future grand opera star crossed his name off her party list.

Is THIRTY the Love Deadline?

Fannie Ward, according to the consensus of available records, was born in St. Louis in 1872. She made her theatrical bow at the age of twelve years. Several years later she became affiliated with Daniel Frohman and made her first hit as "Cupid" in a production of travesty in England where she met and married Joe Lewis, a famous diamond millionaire who was one of Cecil Rhodes' partners. Returning to the stage in this country many years later, she married Edna Dineen, a stage actress, who is alluded to in this article. Fannie Ward, no doubt the youngest looking "old" woman in the world, has naturally been besieged with requests and suggestions that she reveal some of her beauty secrets. Accordingly, she headed a beauty column in "Lure" many years ago.

By FANNIE WARD

The psychologist, William Durant. Save maturity love is all cant. That man over thirty is just flighty and dirty. Oh William Durant, you do rant.

I cannot imagine how the eminent doctor, when he made the statement quoted in the above limerick, came to that extraordinary conclusion.

To be sure, in many Oriental countries marriage is solemnized at the "natural" age and to make it successful they lock up the wife and let the man have as many more wives as he is financially able to take care of, and by this arrangement, he usually is incapable of loving devotion after the age of thirty. If we are to believe Katherine Mayo's "Mother India."

Youth, and when I say "youth," I mean the period of years previous to thirty, is generally recognized as a season to enjoy life in rather an indiscriminate manner.

The peculiar privilege of youth is not to think too much of consequences. As far as love is concerned, youth does not think at all in its adolescent years of psychological ignorance of sex and life and its laws.

I do not scoff at youthful love. Far from it. But I contend as the years pass we acquire a different outlook on people, and on life and its problems, and what may seem purest gold to the eyes of youth is so often apt to appear to maturer judgment rather tarnished tinsel.

Much has been written regarding the expediency or the inexpediency of early marriage and the psychologists are about equally divided in their opinion. The opposers of early marriage are almost unanimous in their chief objection, and that is that the offspring of youthful parent are not so strong either physically or mentally as the children of those of more mature age. And they claim that the pursuit of the names of the world's most distinguished writers, statesmen, and scientists proves their contentions, although they admit many great men are eldest children.

The supporters of early marriage answer this assertion by claiming that this is because of the ignorance that the average modern civilized child is brought up in regarding sex matters and everything relating to the intimate relationship between man and woman in the marriage state, and the procreation and rearing of their offspring.

The modern youthful man and wife is forced to learn the fundamental laws of life by bungling experience and mistakes, coupled with overindulgences under the spell and glamour of their new relationship. Of course this ignorance can be overcome by the abolition of prudery and the correct education of the young in the natural laws of sex life and love, but until this is done, in my opinion, very early marriage is ill advised—to say the least.

Doctor Durant counsels parents to encourage children to wed at the natural age rather than the financial age. That might be splendid advice if we were living natural lives like the birds of the air, but can it be universally and sensibly applied to conditions as they now exist in modern civilized communities?

On married life's journey the rocks and torn-up places are much more frequently met with, especially at the start, than the smooth asphalt road way, and the high cost of modern living has in no way reduced the problems of Mr. and Mrs. Newlywed.

What are the chances for the modern girl and boy in their "nicotene" to make a success out of a bread and kisses marriage if they haven't the "dough" for the bread?

What about these children's children?

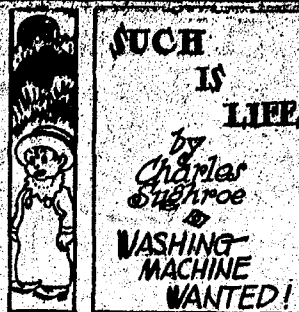

It is a far greater responsibility to create human life than to take it and any couple entering the marriage state, with its financial as well as its moral responsibilities, with no thought of the little ones to be born, are courting disaster. I am banking upon a sea of trouble from whose buffetings they are not liable to be the only, or chief sufferers.

Some people have advocated a marriage at the "natural" age with a restriction on child bearing until the age of twenty-five or thirty years. This would be living a two-part married life. The first part to study and learn life and the second part to produce and direct it.

But if a man, as Doctor Durant asserts, has this strange change in his nature around the age of thirty or over, how are we women going to protect ourselves against it, whether we are married to him already or about to be sacrificed on the hymeneal altar to his chameleon-like affections?

Are we in the future to hear a wife say in the divorce court, "Your honor, on his thirty-first birthday, he said he loved me no longer, and I said to him, 'Why, Egbert, last year you swore you loved me devotedly,' and he replied, 'Ah, ha, last year I was only thirty. Don't you know that Will Durant says that the divine passion ceases after the age of thirty?' Away from me, woman, bring on the chickens; my magnetic currents need restimulating and if a flock of blondes should chase me, like Mr. Coolidge, I would not choose to run."

Kings Solomon had seven hundred wives and that is the worst case of "Durantism" on record. No wonder they called him "Solomon man" and no wonder he formed the first night club, and called it "The Free Masons," and barred all women from their meetings.

But if a man has a peculiar mental and physical change around the age of thirty, I very much doubt if the same applies to women.

I was first married around the "natural" age, as the distinguished writer calls it, and after living an Andy Gump and Miss Existence for years I regained my freedom and my youth at the same time. Mental ability is necessary to conjugal happiness as well as physical love and a too early marriage is liable, in most cases, to supplant ignorance for wisdom and youthful impulse for mature judgment.

I married again when I was in my "frivolous forties," fifteen years ago, and when I travel to France, as I do every year, the divorce court over there is the least interesting to me of all the European courts.

No "Woman's Exchange" for me of the Reno or Paris brand. In my opinion thirty years are none too long for many people to acquire the necessary mental and physical maturity to assume the responsibilities as heads of a family.

But after all, age is not solely a matter of years but of tissue changes. Some are old at twenty and others are young at sixty.

Look you.

LABOR DAY

Greater significance will be given to Labor Day this year if, in celebrating it, we shall do so in the spirit with which Lincoln spoke when he said: "Educated people must labor, otherwise education itself would become a positive and intolerable evil. No country can sustain in idleness more than a small percentage of its members. The great majority must labor at something productive. From these premises the problem springs: 'How can labor and education be most satisfactorily combined?'"

Recent investigations have shown that there is a connection between illiteracy and labor inefficiency. In an Eastern state where a great number of illiterate aliens reside it has been found that an amazing proportion of these persons are incapable of being taught how to operate labor-saving machinery.

Labor too often is looked upon as a mere mechanical process. Too many people, not familiar with the circumstances, regard laborers as human machines.

Labor and education must ever go hand in hand and it must ever be appreciated that the part of the laborer is just as important and honorable as that of any business or profession.

The more attention given the element of education by labor, the greater will be its efficiency and the more pronounced and substantial will be its progress.

It is a very happy and apt circumstance that Labor Day and the reopening of our schools and colleges fall so closely together.

N. E. BUREAU HOLDS SUMMER MEET

(By E. M. T. Service)

The annual summer meeting of the executive committee of the North-Eastern Michigan Development bureau was held at Rogers City, Saturday, August 18. Arrangements for the dinner were in charge of James R. Snody, of Onaway, and Eugene D'Vincent, of Rogers City.

Following the dinner a short business session was held with Marius Hanson, of Grayling, presiding, in the absence of Herman N. Butler, of East Tawas, who was delayed by motor trouble. Rudolph Duestig, Rogers City, welcomed the visitors. The speakers included T. F. Marston, of Bay City, manager; Herman Lund, of Gaylord and Lewiston, past president; John Yuill, Vanderbilt, past president; Mayor Al H. Weber, Cheboygan; D. Eugene Matheson, Roscommon; J. E. Richards, Alpena; J. M. Brown, county agricultural agent of Presque Isle County; James R. Snody, of Onaway, first president; L. L. Drake, Michigan State College Extension Department and special agricultural agent for North-Eastern Michigan.

The visitors were taken on a tour of the Michigan Limestone & Chemical company's plant, a subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation. The trip was made in the observation railroad car of the company. The tour of the calcite plant was intensely interesting to the visitors.

The plant turns out 10,000,000 tons of limestone each year and encompasses an area of 20,000 acres. It is estimated that the supply will last at least 100 years. Seven hundred men are continuously employed in the operation, working in shifts of 20 hours daily for eight months throughout the year. The plant was started in 1911.

Calcite, which is the name of the locality occupied by the plant, possesses one of the finest harbors on the Great Lakes. It is located on Lake Huron, a little more than a mile from Rogers City and is the port from which is shipped the entire supply of limestone used in all the steel corporation's mills of the Great Lakes region as well as a considerable part sold to the iron and steel mills of other corporations.

The harbor is one of the three large harbors on the Great Lakes that has been improved wholly by private capital.

Here is located one of the highest grade calcium limestone deposits in America. Calcite limestone is 98.14% calcium carbonate that is pure lime and contains less than one-third of one per cent of silica iron.

In the area occupied by this plant are limestone bluffs 70 feet above the lake level. In many places there is no dirt over the rock and it can not only be easily quarried but also moved directly from the quarries to vessels in the harbor. The slag of this district, usually a waste, is sold to be manufactured into portland cement.

The visitors had the thrill of witnessing a blast.

Following the trip to the calcite plant the visitors adjourned to P. H. Hoeft State park, where they were welcomed by Mr. Hoeft and Mr. Larke, caretaker.

Remember the good old days when all you had to give the voter to satisfy him for four years was enough gasoline to fill his torch on the night of the torchlight procession?
